

Ethics Construction & Information Management for Biobank

July 6 to 8, 2012 | Shanghai San Want Hotel

Continuing Medical Education (CME)

Overview

As precious resources for clinical research, clinical biological specimen serves as significant cornerstone for transnational medical research. While we witness the rapid development of biobanks in China, we should also aware of the arising ethical and information issues related to the development. It is urgent to have a clear understanding of the current conditions and problems in China, absorb international expertise, and discuss solutions to build feasible ethical rules, safe and fast information management systems for biobanks.

After the 1st International Conference for Biobank Management and QC & Shanghai Biobank Development Workshop 2011, Shanghai Clinical Research Center (SCRC) combines the needs of the participants, analyzes current situations of China's biobank construction and prepares for the 2nd Biobank China 2012. The theme of this conference will focus on the ethics and information management of biobanks as well as best practices in biobank development. We have collaborated with globally renowned biobanks, such as the Office of Biorepository and Biospecimen Research (OBBR) of National Cancer Institute (NCI) in USA, BBMRI, UK Biobank and INSERM. International experts and domestic biobank managers will be invited to introduce their practices and experience in biobank's ethics and information management. We hope that the conference would enhance exchanges and cooperations among biobank practitioners and contribute to China's biobank ethics and information management.

Ethics Construction for Biobank

Time: July 6 to 8, 2012

Location: Shanghai San Want Hotel

Address: No. 650 Yishan Road, Xuhui District,
Shanghai

Topics:

Biobank Management and Translational Medical Research
Ethics Construction for Biobank
Information Management for Biobank

Organizers:

Shanghai Clinical Research Center
Shanghai Engineering and Research Center of Biobank

Acknowledgements:

Office of Biorepository and Biospecimen Research of National Cancer Institute (NCI-OBBR)
Biobanking and Biomolecular Resources Research Infrastructure (BBMRI)
UK Biobank
French National Institute of Health and Medical Research (INSERM)
12th Five-Year Plan National Biospecimens Bank for Critical Diseases

Highlights:

International: We collaborated with OBBR, BBMRI, UK Biobank, INSERM, introduce the standardization of biobanks and expertise in ethic construction and information system.

Professional: Renowned experts such as Kurt Zatloukal, Jim Vaught, Paul Downey, Academician Guoping Zhao, Professor Ching-Li Hu and Professor Pang Wang are invited as speakers, introducing the latest concepts and methods on biobank construction.

Practical: Based on the participants' feedback and needs last year and in-depth research, the conference this year covers a wide range of topics, including the best practices of biobanks, how to use biobanks for transnational medical research, ethic protection for the rights and privacy of the donors, and the construction and security of the information system.

Influential: Over 200 people of 80 units from 19 provinces and municipalities participated in the first conference. This year, experts and executives from top universities, institutes and hospitals both home and abroad will attend the conference, offering a high-end platform.

Session 2	08:30-12:00	Ethic guideline for biobank and access rules for biobank networking	Georges Dagher Renzong Qiu
